Horror Finds a Home

Netflix Welcomes you to Bly Manor, a new horror experience

Los Angeles, CA – June 13, 2020 – Netflix content coordinator Richard Klein and director Mike Flanagan want to welcome you to Bly Manor, a home beyond your wildest nightmares. From director Mike Flanagan comes the second installment of the Haunting series, The Haunting of Bly Manor. This season follows the story of Henry James’ The Turn of the Screw, the story of an au pair who begins her descent into madness at the hands of the two children she oversees.

“This is such a strong and interesting story, and bringing it to life has been an amazing experience,” says Flanagan, series director. “With the Haunting of Hill House I knew my monsters. I could see them and make them my own, but with Bly Manor, I’m learning a lot, and it’s less about the monsters and more about the journey your mind will take you on with these visuals.”

Netflix content coordinator Richard Klein said that creating a second season was a “no brainer” for the service. “Hill House exceeded all expectations, and with an audience hungry for original content, we knew that expanding on a series people begged for would allow viewers a whole new experience. We hope that people will find new horrors in Bly Manor like they have never seen before.”

Netflix is an international streaming service that offers pre-existing and original movie and series streaming. The services offers a wide array of genres and content that welcomes people of all ages, and walks of life to experience series, movies, and content of all genres.
